Newry withdrawal Once again it's costs, fairness and quality But new CPS alters the old issues

By MICHAEL DANIELS

"The issues are still the same," said Newry selectman Jim Sysko -- how much the town pays to SAD44, how little input it has in the School Board, and above all, he said, the quality of education it provides for its children.

Three dozen Newry residents turned out Monday evening to hear about the mechanics involved in, and rationale behind, the town's latest attempt to withdraw from SAD44.

They heard little that they hadn't heard before, but many of those who spoke out still seemed willing to spend the $4,000 it will cost to examine the question one more time.

Art Marshall, who was "100 percent behind" the withdrawal initiative of three years ago, said his views may have changed. "If I had to vote today," he said, "I'd have a tough time."

But Marshall argued for going through the process one more time, if only to put the matter fully to rest. "If it fails a second time, I don't think it will come up again," he said.

Not everyone was convinced. "Every two or three years you're going to rehash this and rehash this," said Newry school director Debbie Gilbert. "It just gets people all worked up, sets neighbor against neighbor, husband against wife. Three years ago the people spoke."

If the past three years have produced any development likely to alter the dynamics of the debate, it is the presence (and cost) of the newly expanded and renovated Crescent Park School in Bethel.

Withdrawal supporters have focused their discussion of the quality of elementary education in the district -- and the reputed improvements that could be achieved for Newry pupils if the town had its own elementary school.

Indian pot found on Station site

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Bethel Station is only the latest manifestation of at least 1,000 years of commercial activity along the nearby stretch of the Androscoggin River.

Ceramic sherds and fragments found last month by a University of Maine archaeological team testify once again to the presence of Indians here hundreds of years ago -- in this case during the period dating from 600 to 1,000 A.D.

The river has long been considered to have played a crucial role in the social and commercial life of the eastern Abenaki Indians.

In his 1991 book, "Bethel, Maine: An Illustrated History," Bethel Historical Society curator Randall Bennett writes: "Waterways, such as Bethel's broad Androscoggin River, were all-important transportation routes for well-crafted birch bark canoes."

The site of the most recent find is Ceramic fragments won't slow work, but will lead to wider and deeper archaeological probing located approximately 45 feet from the river, and roughly midway between routes 2 and 26.

The National Historical Preservation Act requires that archaeological surveys be carried out before any large project -- such as Bethel Station -- is undertaken in an area where historic or prehistoric artifacts are likely to be located.

Last month's find is not likely to delay the Bethel Station project, since the ceramics were located in wetland area near the river -- an area which is not slated to be disturbed by currently proposed development.

A bike and pedestrian path is planned to run along the river, passing near the site. Developer Heinic

Merrill said the site of the find would be marked off and visible from the path.

The archaeological survey was carried out by a team from UMF's Archaeological Research Center (UMF-ARC). The survey included a walkover of the entire site and the digging of 11, 19-by-19-inch test pits and three 60-by-19-inch pits.

According to the survey report, most of the project area was not considered likely to preserve intact prehistoric deposits, largely because of the intense disturbance the area has undergone in the past two centuries. (See page 2 for an overview of activities at the site during that period.)

One test area, however, did yield a prehistoric find: 28 ceramic sherds and fragments believed to be from 1,000 to 1,400 years old.

Bethel trash Pay-per-bag is back on the table

By WENDY HANSCOM

Bethel's Solid Waste Committee recommended to selectmen Monday evening that the town go to a pay-per-bag system for trash disposal.

Instead of assessing taxpayers for trash disposal, the new system shifts the cost of disposing of trash to those who generate it. The town could probably even make money on the pay-per-bag system, according to committee member Nancy Schlieper.

Currently Bethel pays Dwight Merrill by the ton to haul trash from residents' homes, businesses and the transfer station. (Some homeowners also pay Merrill a fee for the convenience of leaving their trash beside the road for pickup.) The town also pays a per-ton tipping fee at the disposal facility. The town budget for trash disposal this year is $221,065.

The committee's cost estimates for the pay-per-bag system are based on the town generating 1,666.66 tons of waste a year.

The plan does not call for mandatory recycling, but the committee also predicted that if the town goes with the pay-per-bag system, recycling will increase, and ultimately drop the total tonnage figure by 25 percent, bringing the trash total to about 1,249 tons.

If the town paid what is considered a minimum disposal tipping fee of $57 per ton, on 1,249 tons it would cost roughly $71,250.

Under the pay-per-bag system, Merrill would be paid by the town to pick up everyone's trash. D&E Sanitation has submitted a bid of $6

Upton OKs school spending

By WENDY HANSCOM

Upton voters agreed to spend $54,153 last week to educate their nine students in SAD44, but only after SAD44 lowered its bid to provide transportation.

At a meeting last month, Upton voters couldn't agree on how to transport their students to SAD44, so they postponed approving a school budget.

The town's School Committee, however, voted Wednesday to accept SAD44's offer to bus Upton students to the Telstar complex and the Crescent Park School. The committee rejected other private contract bids for transportation.

SAD44 agreed to transport the students for $21,500. This is $5,500 less than a similar offer SAD44 Superintendent Ronald Jenkins made last month. District business man-

WE VOTED FOR THE PROJECT

To the Editor:

As a voter in Bethel I wish to remind Ms. Hooke ("Reject Chain Train Station" July 6, Citizen) that the debate is over. We overwhelmingly voted in favor of this project.

Rob Noll

GET OFF THE TRACKS, KATIE

To the Editor:

For years I have endured a seemingly endless parade of "Katie-Bar-The-Gates" who have marched into Bethel with invisible crosses strapped to their backs and a mission to save the town from itself.

Now comes attorney Hooke, who may not be as familiar as I with Bethel when it was a town with high joblessness, few opportunities for its youth, and a scarcity of stores that forced its citizens to shop in surrounding towns. There were deserted businesses and there was little hope or optimism in those businesses that remained. Many people -- and every business that was left -- had to struggle to survive.

The development and evolution of Bethel since then has admittedly created some changes that may not please everyone. Of course it would be nice to go through the checkout counter at the I.G.A. and never have to wait, but the inconveniences that development has brought with it are utterly trivial when considered against one -- let alone the many -- college education that may have been paid for with tourism generated dollars.

Let me be considered a proponent of the Bethel Station project because my company stands to "make a lot of money" from the sale of land to the developers, the reality is that our sale price is substantially less than our purchase price in 1988. But it's gratifying to know that the individuals behind the project are proven responsible, successful people with a commitment to and roots in the community far deeper than some of its opponents. Bethel is far luckier than other towns where the developer more often is not a community member with a previously vested interest in a project's success. Heinie Merrill and Grant Wilson have already collaborated on a major project which is tasteful, well-executed, and successful. Les Otten's commitment to the community, its schools, and its youth is absolutely beyond question.

Lying on the railroad tracks to stop this project will only forestall the inevitable and considerable benefits that this community can derive in terms of jobs, tax dollars, services and opportunities for the citizens. I would ask Ms. Hooke, in the most polite way possible, to apply her individual agenda and personal power trip to an issue where she can cause far less damage.

MIDDLE SCHOOL PARENTS GROUP

To the Editor:

A group of Middle School parents has recently organized to provide support for the education of our children at Telstar Middle School. We are glad to get organized at this time, and are full of energy and creativity to provide support, as our children enter some of the most formative years of their lives.

We would like to get input as to ways people think a parent group could be useful and helpful to our children as they progress through middle school. We are also looking for people to indicate a level of interest. If we can get a lot of the ground work done over the summer vacation, we ought to be able to meet the new school year organized and ready to go.

We would appreciate a written response or phone call with ideas and interest to me, or to any of the other local contacts:

WERE YOU PART OF CLASS OF '89?

To the Editor:

Several weeks ago we placed a letter in the Citizen announcing that plans were in the works for the Telstar Class of '89 fifth-year reunion. We are happy to report that we were able to locate and formally invite those class members whose pictures appeared in the yearbook.

At this time we would like to extend the invitation to anyone who was a part of our class at some point. The reunion will be held July 17 in Bryant Pond. Please contact Sandy at 824-7615 for details and directions.

PARTNERSHIP SEEKS VOLUNTEERS

To the Editor:

The Regional Partnership is trying to establish a way to expand opportunities for this area's young people. At the present time a few activities are being planned and will be soon offered to young people in the middle and high school age groups. Some of the people who have been active in making initial plans are Sally Hannon, Lisa Pivin, Sue Howe, Chuck Mason, Gary Wight, Gail Wight, and Kathie Cole, the area coordinator of the Regional Partnership.

We want to expand our efforts and work on an acceptable set of guidelines for our program. If you are interested in helping to expand chemical-free opportunities for our young people, please contact Kathie Cole at 824-2689 or 1-800-649-2306. It is our hope that people willing to help with "Safe Hangouts," the name given to our program, will volunteer to host or chaperone, provide transportation, or share ideas with us. People of all ages are urged to participate in this effort. We are especially hopeful that several teenagers from the area will help us with the task of establishing guidelines.

Let's work together to make this community (the towns making up M.S.A.D. #44's student population) a safer, happier environment.

200 years along the river

The following material was taken from a report summarizing historical activity on the site of the proposed Bethel Station development. The report was prepared by Kathleen Wheeler, Ph.D., a consultant subcontracted to the project through UMF-ARC. The "historical period" is considered to be the time since the first settlement by Europeans.

The project area was originally part of a large farmstead owned by Jonathan Clark, head of one of the first families to settle in what was then known as Sudbury Canada in the early 1780s (Lapham 1981:38). Clark's share in Division 31 stretched between the Androscoggin River and the railroad line on the north-south axis, and from the present Bridge Street east to the Alder River Bridge ("The Bethel Courier" 1993:2). In 1788, the land was acquired by Daniel Clark, who lived in a log house for several years, rented the property to Timothy Patch, and sold the land to Deacon Samuel Barker in 1802 ("The Bethel Courier" 1993:2).

The Barker family continued occupation on the land, with some small parts sold off along Bridge Street in the early 20th century. All of these properties, most of which were developed in the 1940s and 1960s, fall beyond the bounds of the project area and should not be impacted by development at Bethel Station. At the southeast end of the former Barker farm, Chesley Saunders established Merrill Springer Company, which became the Hanover Dowel Company in the 1940s.

The project area, then, can be viewed as consisting of the interior portion of the former Barker cattle farm, now owned by Pat and Ersel Murphy. Only the northeast corner of the original farm holding remains. Along Bridge Street, smaller lots have been developed as residence or businesses, including a gas station, Chinese restaurant, and video store; all of these are excluded from development impact. The west side of the project area is delimited by Route 26, and historical documentation indicates that only one residence was here, at the southwest end of the project area, at the intersection of Cross Street and Route 26. This was formerly the residence of Doctor Charles Walker Gordon, who married a granddaughter of Samuel Barker (Lapham 1981:542). His dwelling house was recorded on a late 19th century map (Beers 1880), but it may have been impacted by the construction of Cross Street in 1921. Deed research could establish more clearly when the Gordon house was razed.

The northern boundary of the Bethel Station project is comprised of the Androscoggin River, where the only recorded historic development occurred in the 1940s just beyond the northwest edge of the project area, when Richard Davis built a sawmill near the Androscoggin and the channel of Alder River ("The Bethel Courier" 1993:11). After repeated flooding episodes, Davis moved the sawmill on higher ground within the Bethel Station project area in 1978. By the time of the walkover, all evidence of the sawmill structure had been dismantled, except for concrete pads to support the sill beams.

The southern portion of the project area was developed as Cross Street in 1921, resulting in one dowel mill and several other businesses. The impact of this development can be said to involve massive disturbance, and archaeological sensitivity is therefore considered low for this area.

Recommendations

In terms of historic sensitivity, the Bethel Station is well located given the paucity of undisturbed early historic remains.

(The "Lapham" citation is to William B. Lapham's "History of Bethel Formerly Sudbury Canada, Oxford County, Maine 1768-1890, With a Brief Sketch of Hanover and Family Statistics"; published by New England History Press, 1981. The "Bethel Courier" is published by the Bethel Historical Society.)

Pot

involved makes any detailed speculation about the nature of the site impossible, according to Richard Bartone, a research supervisor with UMF-ARC.

The site may, he said, have been simply a temporary camping place for Indians. Such sites, Bartone said, are common along north-eastern rivers.

The fragments found last month are believed to have come from a single artifact, probably a small pot or other type of ceramic vessel approximately 12 inches around, Bartone said.

They were found buried 12 to 15 inches deep.

It is now up to the Maine Historic Preservation Commission to decide how much more intensive (Archaeological Phase II) testing will be required in the area.

Such testing typically seeks to define the vertical and horizontal boundaries of the site, its age, as well as its significance and the effects, if any the Bethel Station project would be likely to have on the site.

Dr. Stanley Howe, executive director of the Bethel Historical Society is a member of the state commission. "I'll be very excited if they find more," Howe said. Locally, many of the known areas of Indian activity were destroyed by the gravel pits along the Northwest Bethel Road, Howe said, "but there's still the possibility of finding some important sites."

The Summer State House

By MIKE BROWN

Maine's State House and inhabitants are in the summer doldrums. But with all the construction work going on, this old house looks like a beehive on blueberry hill.

Workers have skirted the State House with new base foundations. And dome reconstruction is going on which will finally provide a safe perch (and lighted) for the great copper resposse statue of "Lady of Wisdom." This 12-foot high statue, brazed together with silver solder, was designed, executed and given to the state of Maine in 1909 by William Clark Noble, an American ranking sculptor and native of Gardiner. His Lady can look down on her creator's gravesite at Gardiner's Mt. Hope Cemetery.

Inside the State House, nary a person can be seen at times throughout the three floors, although House, Senate and Legislative work continues. Offices of the Legislative Council, Revisor of Statutes, Fiscal and Program Review and Policy and Legal Analysis are closing up work on the 116th and preparing for the 117th Legislature.

Majority and minority party offices, including those of House Speaker and Senate President, are analyzing the June primary results. One thing is certain -- there will be many new faces milling about the State House in 1995. And some veteran politicians will be absent either by choice or election.

The House seems safe for Democrats, as they now have a 91-58 majority over Republicans. But there may be some fireworks in the D-House especially if ex-Speaker John Martin wins district reelection and goes again for the speakership. Some sources say that is a possibility.

However, it's very doubtful that present and popular Speaker Dan Gwadoski will be replaced. But look for Martin to get the appointment of House chair of the appropriations committee, a very important post. Incidentally, Martin, just a plain ol' rep these days, seems to still occupy a private office on the third floor to "sort out his papers." And whatever happened to that job he said he had with the Democratic National Committee shilling for Hillary Clinton's health plan?

With only about five months left of the McKernan Administration, the bail-outs continue. Sharon Miller, the Governor's chief of staff, has left to join the Olympia Snowe campaign. Her duties have been assumed by John Devine, the Governor's legal counsel.

The Governor's cabinet will probably self-destruct soon. Commissioners live by political elections and die by political elections. And it would be prudent to realize that whomever the new governor -- Brennan, Collins or King -- a new slate of commissioners will be sworn.

Brennan, say his foes, would salt his administration with his old cronies. Collins, say the liberals, would appoint a more conservative cabinet than did McKernan. Nobody seems to have a clue about a King cabinet.

Whoever is governor will not be able to erase the lobbyists influence around the State House. There are about 330 registered lobbyists compensated at some $3 million a year. Big bucks, big time pressure.

Every special interest stripe in Maine has its lobbyist soldier armed and on duty at the State House. When issues such as the Indian gambling casino emerge, the lobbyists seem to outnumber the legislators on the second floor millrace.

But the political intrigue is always fascinating with the exit of one legislative body and the entrance of another, both with the expectation of majority rule.

Coming this fall at a ballot box near you: picking the winners and losers.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

Perfect summer weather provided the ideal setting for the second annual community picnic sponsored by the Bethel Historical Society on July 4 on the grounds of the Dr. Moses Mason House. This event was initiated last year to continue a tradition established by Dr. Moses Mason in the 1850s. Master of ceremonies for the day was Bethel Historical Society trustee John B. Head, who introduced Margaret Joy Tibbetts, Bethel native, former U.S. Ambassador, and society trustee chairman, for a few remarks on her memories of the Fourth of July during her childhood. Miss Tibbetts recalled some of the mischief that occurred in Bethel the night before the Fourth and the widespread use of fire crackers and other explosives during the day. Following Miss Tibbetts' remarks a concert by the Portland Brass Quintet was enjoyed by a crowd estimated to be between 250 and 300. The quintet was brought to Bethel in part by a grant from the Maine Arts Commission and the Mahoosuc Arts Council. Other supporters included the Hall Memorial Fund of the Bethel Historical Society; the Bethel Rotary Club; Mundt-Allen Post, American Legion; Margaret Joy Tibbetts, Bethel; John B. Head, Bethel; Leslie B. Otten, Newry; Richard Valentine, Bethel; Frances Harding, Bethel; Edna York, Bethel; the Reverends Brendon and Jean Bass, Bethel; Kenneth and Gwyneth Bohr, Bethel; Norman and Joan Putnam, Bethel; Robert and Nancy Chadbourne, Bethel; Carol Neilson, Bethel; Richard and Jane Hosterman, West Bethel; Mildred Thomas, Bethel; Florine Bowden, Zephyrhills, Fla.; Robert and Bethia Newmarker, Tolland, Conn.

The Bethel Historical Society's annual picnic was held on July 7. Prior to the trip to Artist's Bridge, society curator of collections Randall H. Bennett made a slide presentation on the history of the Sunday River Valley based largely on the photos taken and collected by Martha Fildell Wilkins, whose forebears came from this area. A picnic lunch was enjoyed by those attending at Artist's Bridge, followed by a tour of the Sunday River Cemetery and a discussion of the Foster Homestead recently honored by the society for being an outstanding example of historic preservation in the Bethel area. Following this portion of the tour, nearly 50 persons proceeded further to beyond Twin Bridges where Bennett provided further details relating to the history of the area.

Eighteen skiers and four coaches (lower right) returned from Tignes, France last week, where they trained from June 21 to July 10 on the Grand Motte Glacier above the town of Tignes La Val Claret. Local students included Parker Gray of Newry, Brian Arsenault and James Meader, both of Rumford, and Sasha Rearick of Bethel -- shown (left) skiing a one-ski drill. Dana Drummond of Conway, N.H. Bryant Pond

By ALICE HOYT

The Historical Society makes valuable contributions to the community and our area. They feel everyone can benefit from the lessons of the past. The museum displays items that should interest practically everyone. Curator Larry Billings has given a literature book to the society. On Aug. 6 the society will sponsor History Day at the museum. There will be a flea market outside and demonstration and refreshments inside. Be sure to attend.

Bob and Gwenn Hoyt visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hoyt, and grandmother Beatrice Farnum on Monday and Tuesday.

Beatrice Farnum was supper guest of her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Chase, on Monday night.

The Bryant Pond Baptist Church will hold five day clubs July 18 to 22 from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. at the Awana Room. Child Evangelism Fellowship will be teaching the five day clubs. All school-age children are welcome to attend.

Each Tuesday at 4 p.m. is Bryant Pond hour on Channel IV T.V.

Franklin Grange met on Monday, July 4, for Patriotic Night program.

Richard Felt reported it was the first time ever there is a lady candidate for governor. It was voted to put on the supper for the Republicans in October. Sick people reported on were Bertha Benoit, Viva Whitman, Nita Allen, and Helen Chase. July 18 will be the next meeting, with a two-point meeting with Oxford Grange, at Franklin. There will be a 6:30 supper. Twenty-four were present. The program follows: opening song by all; opening thought by Anna Swan; song by all, "Grand Old Flag"; "Remember the Flag" reading by Peggy Blake; Harry Boyer sang; Anna Swan had a quiz; Laura Hutchins read "Life in the United States"; a game with watermelon seeds -- Roy Day won; Roy Day was presented his 60-year certificate; a patriotic march with hats and flags; closing song, "My Country 'tis of Thee" by all.

East Stoneham

By ELEANOR NELSON

Stoneham Rescue Unit is having their weekly beano games every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Johnny Kahkonen from Oxford has been staying with his great-aunt Frances Grant and helping her on the farm.

Kate Flynn is in the Northern Cumberland Memorial Hospital in Bridgton and will be there a few more days.

The pancake breakfast at Kezar Lake Grange Hall was well attended; also the annual flea market was held there on Monday, July 4. Everybody was well pleased with their breakfast and purchases. There will be a chicken barbecue there at North Lovell on Aug. 6. July 23rd is the lobster-steak cookout at the Rescue Unit here in East Stoneham.

Shirley Grant from Auburn has been visiting Frances Grant this past week.

Sharon and Abdul Traish and Aisha, Jaffer and Nawal from Belmont, Mass., were at their cottage on Keewaydin Lake over the Fourth of July weekend. I guess that most people who have a camp or cottage were at it over that weekend. This really starts the summer off.

Wednesday, July 6, Cheryl Barnard and Joshua, Jennifer, and Lindsey and cat "Pepper" arrived from Turkey to spend the summer with her parents, Albert and Eleanor Nelson.

Brenda Files is having a week's vacation from her work in Fryeburg.

North Newry

By GIL SEELEY

Don Bachelier, wife Christine and son Brett from Oxford, Ga., are visiting his parents, Ras and Karlene Bachelier and Christine's parents, Edie and Homer Smith in Bethel.

While here in North Newry, they enjoyed a family gathering, celebrating Don's parents' 50th wedding anniversary with a cookout Sunday, July 3, with about 20 or 30 people attending -- Brent Bachelier and Terry O'Dowd from Rhode Island; Aaron Bachelier and daughter Krista and son Aaron Jr. from Mars Hill; Don's daughter Carol Ann and husband Duke from Virginia Beach and their five children; Michelle (Karlene and Ras's granddaughter) and her husband Paul Josephson from Portland; Julia Goodwin and her twin daughters Hilma and Wilma from Unity and Belfast. Five generations were represented.

Videos and pictures were taken, hamburgers were enjoyed. Friends and neighbors came to help in the festivities, such as Dick and Betsy Clark, Lia and little Luke, Jock and Christine Morton and their two boys, Kevin Slater and yours truly, to name a few more.

Tuesday, the 5th, Don, Christine, Brett, Carolann, Duke and children, and Karlene and Ras took off for Stratton to visit with Ras's father Aaron to take more pictures of the five generations on that side of the family. They all enjoyed a picnic while there.

More cookouts and family get-togethers -- this time it's Sunday, July 2, at Owen and Sue Wight's where the following family and friends gathered: Susan, Jon, Chris Bowie from North Newry; Bill, Gail, Samantha Carlisle of Whitefield; Randy, Audrey, Seneca and Amber Brooke of North Newry; Matt, Donna, Diana, Sara, Julie and Robie from Malaga, Wash.; Tom, Edith and son Rick from Chelmsford, Mass.; Scott from New York City; Leslie, Craig and Damon of Chelmsford, Mass.; Jeff, Lynn, Beckey of Harrison.

Tom and Edith's baby son Frederick Murphy Wight (Rick) was baptized at the Newry Community Church Sunday morning after the services. The Irish "Gang" from Newry, Ireland, were there at the time prior to leaving for parts around Maine and return to their own town of Newry, Ireland.

Mrs. Frank Lowell Sr. (Bea) is back home since Tuesday after visiting for 10 days with a college friend in Brigham City, Utah. While there she visited Bryce, Zion and Grand canyons, also saw live broadcasts of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir in Salt Lake City, plus many other sites.

Mrs. Mary Ennes of Arlington, Vt., spent the holiday weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lowell Sr. recently.

Louise Tetley, Doris Parent, Bea Lowell, Gil Seeley and Olive Anderson of the "Newry Bowling Gang" went to the Oxford Lanes, Rumford, one day last week. Bea was high on the singles beating Doris by one pin, Doris and Gil tied on the triples beating Bea by one pine. Doris had one spare, Bea two spares, Gil one spare and Olive one spare.

Granddaughter Robin and husband Jim Viola and their two children Paul and Sara of Loomister, Mass., were here in North Newry to help celebrate Norman and Louise Tetley's 54th wedding anniversary last week, besides taking in some fishing and shopping. Happy Anniversary, Norm and Louise!

Happy Birthday to Dick Clark, Sylvia Harrington, Amy Hanscom and all others who were born between June 22 and July 23. "Not to be taken seriously".... People born in the sign of Cancer, like their symbol "the crab," often appear hard and insensitive on the outside, yet they are soft and vulnerable on the inside and are easily hurt. Like the "crab," natives of Cancer are evasive, always side-stepping, preferring not to confront anything too directly. They are very emotional; they are kind, sensitive, sympathetic, protective, cautious, shrewd, resourceful and moody. They are musical and artistic. Their birthstones are silver pearl and ruby which bestows true friends and good health. Their favorite flowers are water lily, magnolia, white rose and baby breath. Famous people born in Cancer are Ross Perot on June 28, my mother who was born on July 4, U.S.A. or July 4, St. John the Baptist and Geraldo Rivera.

told her name, but I can't spell it. It is going to be nice to have it occupied once more.

This has been a slow news week. Even the cats have let me down. This weather, they figure, is good for nothing but stretching out in the cool grass and napping. They are not particularly impressed with the air conditioner, but the dog has decided it's not such a bad thing to stay in the house and vegetate. I've got to admit my inclination is to do the same thing, but I begin to suffer cabin fever after a bit and will be glad when the "muggs" are gone and the air is breathable once more.

Debbie and Owen Brown have moved into their camp, turning house, on North Pond for the summer. It takes all their spare moments working to get it livable and it's coming along fast -- at least I think so. I'm sure they find it slow. As I read this over, I think I have to say that some of Debbie's spare time is spent fishing. Put a pond in front of Debbie the lure (no pun intended) of the fish is too much to resist. I ought to know, as I often gratefully receive many of the results.

If any of you have items for the paper, I'd appreciate getting them fairly early in the week. Until I get a car on the road there may be times I will have to put the items in the mail.

Ralph Mills, Colchester, Vt., came Friday to spend a few days with his mother, Lorraine Mills.

Twenty-two Upton voters collected in the school house to vote upon four articles, three of which were aligned with school budget and affairs. The first article was to elect a moderator, and State Representative Al Barth was chosen by 13 votes out of 13 cast. The second article concerned raising additional local funds with a recommendation of $29,622. After a requested explanation given by Supt. Ron Jenkins, agent for Upton, and questions and comments from the floor, the article was approved unanimously.

The third article was for an authorization for the School Board to expend the monies that had been raised. This, too, was approved.

The fourth article was for authorization for a bus purchase. First selectman Robert Brown said it was not needed, as the school board had accepted a bid from SAD44 for complete transportation of Upton school children. This article was turned down by the voters.

Rep. Barth asked the visitors to introduce themselves after he was sworn in as moderator. Mr. and Mrs. Ken Fysh of Berlin, N.H. and Mill Road, Upton, and Mrs. and Mrs. Wilson identified themselves and Mr. Barth introduced himself and his wife Lee. The meeting lasted one-half hour.

Ron and Betty Jordan are buying fresh wholesale produce, picking berries and operating a part-time booth in Errol, N.H. They include their homemade jams and preserves.

Donna Bonati of Rochester, N.Y., is visiting her daughter Amy Geiling and family for several days.

The Berniers are gearing up for a family reunion at Heritage Farm on July 16.

Amy and Gerry Geiling tendered a party for their families and neighbors with the help of several Ladies' Aid members who cooked and served a meal at the Building on July 2.

Dean and Pam Merchant, who reside part-time in the former Grange Hall, have donated several books to the Upton town library.

Strawberries at Heritage Farm are extra tasty this year. The raspberries are promising to yield well.

West Paris

By RUSSELL YATES

Sunday, July 3, we had a Yates Family Reunion at Bryce and Barbara Yates' home on the Sunday River Road in Newry. Peggy made some sandwiches to take, and we also took one of her strawberry-rhubarb pies. We were the first guests there, but others soon arrived and the turnout was as nice as the beautiful day. Barbara's sister and husband, also many members of their family, were here from Oklahoma to visit relatives, and they all joined our get-together.

Each family brought food and it was all put on the tables. When it was time to eat, each one chose what looked the best to them. There were plenty of grilled hot dogs and hamburgers as well as all the other food. There was no excuse for anyone to go away hungry. Bryce and Barbara have a beautiful home with lots of area surrounding it, and there was activity at all corners and in between. Everybody seemed to be having a good time and enjoying the party.

There will be a dance at the West Paris Grange Hall on July 16, with music by the Richard Felt Orchestra. This dance will be hosted by the West Paris Sportsmen's Club, as I understand it.

Don't forget the Musical Supper, to be hosted by Franklin Grange of Bryant Pond and served at the American Legion Hall in Locke Mills on July 19. They will start serving at 5:30 p.m. A $5 supper ticket ($2.50 for children under 12) will entitle you to a good supper, a two-hour-plus variety show and all will be followed by dancing to music by the Richard Felt Orchestra. This is a bargain that each and everyone can enjoy. Hope to see you there.

Tim Remington

Adam Newell

Two Telstar Rebels selected for "The Top 96" tournament

Telstar baseball players Tim Remington and Adam Newell have been selected to participate in the "Top 96" Baseball Invitational Tournament.

Only 96 players have been selected to play in this three-day event.

They were chosen by a committee headed by John Brickley (KC Royals), Rick Peterson (San Diego Padres), and Gary Ridge (Milwaukee Brewers).

The players are either nominated by their high school coach, American Legion coach, a local college coach, or by the committee themselves.

The goal of "The Top 96" is to become the premier showcase tournament in the Northeast, so New England players don't have to bear the expense of traveling to such showcase tournaments as the "Area Code Games" in California, "Team One" in Ohio, or the "Fall Classic" in Virginia.

As of July 1, 40 colleges, as well as many pro teams have confirmed their attendance for the games.

Tim and Adam are currently playing on the Locke Mills Legion team.

Their next game is Saturday, July 16, starting at 11 p.m. at the Gould Academy Field.

Health Center

Poison ivy rash has two causes: the first is direct irritation to the skin by the resin of the leaves; the second, which accounts for the blistering and itching, is an allergic response by the body causing inflammation. Some people are more allergic than others and will have a greater reaction to the same amount of contact.

The resin may be removed by soap and water. For this reason, prompt washing after exposure is essential to avoid spread to oneself or others. The clear fluid from a weeping blister is actually serum from inside the body. This fluid will not cause spreading.

Mild cases of poison ivy are best handled by using cold compresses for 15 to 20 minutes, four to six times a day.

Domeboro tablets or powder (also called Boro solution and available over the counter) dissolved in cold water makes a soothing, antiseptic compress solution. After the compress, calamine lotion should be applied. Like all things that itch, poison ivy will itch more when one is warm and sweaty or clothing rubs on the rash.

More severe cases, with bad itching and large blisters, may require steroid creams or tablets which help block the allergic reaction. For these, a prescription is needed.

Fall childbirth education classes are in the process of being planned. The health center is considering holding these classes in early November through mid-December. Please call the health center if another time would be more advantageous.

Boating and boozing don't mix

Boating is one of summer's great joys, but the allure of open water can be deceptive. Hundreds of pleasure-seeking boaters perish each year in accidents on the water, many of which are alcohol-related.

Experts suggest boaters consider the following before taking to the water:

--After about three hours' exposure to the noise, motion, sun, wind and glare, boaters' reaction time can double. Alcohol, a depressant, further slows reaction time.

--Alcohol greatly intensifies the effect of caloric labyrinthitis, a disorientation caused by cold water entering the ear. A drinking person whose head is submerged may become so confused that he or she swims down to death rather than up to safety.

--Drinking beer or wine while boating is just as dangerous as drinking hard liquor. A 12-ounce beer, a five-ounce glass of wine and a 1.25-ounce shot of 100-proof liquor all pack the same punch.

--If you must drink while boating, limit consumption to one drink every 90 minutes to two hours, and never drink on an empty stomach. Food helps slow the absorption of alcohol into the bloodstream.

--If you expect to have more than one drink every 90 minutes, let a non-drinker operate the boat. An impaired person at the helm endangers himself, his or her guests and other boaters.

--Offer everyone in the boat a life jacket, and keep them visible and accessible to those who choose not to wear them.

--Know the "rules of the water" and obey them.

Boating is a wonderful way to spend a summer day, but drinking and driving is just as dangerous on the water as it is on the road, and the consequences can be just as tragic.

DUGOUT DIGS
An inventive family of tentists at the Maine Bicycle Rally made good use of one of Tel-star's new baseball dugouts - which made a dandy porch during Saturday's drizzly stretches. Nearly 100 cyclists registered for this year's rally, which was sponsored by the Casco Bay Bicycle Club and featured rides throughout the Evans Notch area.

Business Visitation Program subject of presentation

The Evans Notch Economic Project will sponsor a presentation on The Maine Department of Economic and Community Development's (DECD) Business Visitation Program on Wednesday, July 20, from 7:30 to 9 a.m. at The Sudbury Inn, Bethel.

Dawn Perkins, director of the program, will outline the program's goals, explain the role local economic development interests play, highlight the support services DECD provides and demonstrate the program's success in other areas of the state.

Questions from the audience will be fielded and preliminary plans to start the program in the region will be made.

The Business Visitation Program is designed to assist local economic development and diversification interests pinpoint the needs of local business people. This process, once completed, allows groups to concentrate efforts on tangible problems, thus improving efficiency and effectiveness of business assistance, according to Gregory P. Herrick, consultant to the local economic study.

By working with existing businesses, Herrick said, the area will ensure that it keeps what it has by improving the local business climate.

Cooperative efforts among municipalities, civic organizations, lending institutions and economic development groups will help existing businesses grow and allow new business ventures to begin.

Herrick organized this event following meetings with local interests and after conducting two public sessions; one on Maine's Worker's Compensation System and one on Business Financing options.

Herrick believes this program will complement his work, scheduled to conclude on July 30, and continue the process of identifying the needs of area businesses.

It also offers the opportunity for regional organizations to work cooperatively on a shared-interest project, thus paving the way for further cooperative efforts to improve the economy of the region.

Area groups have been informed of this presentation, but all interested persons are welcome to attend.

The event is free and coffee, juice, muffins and donuts will be served;
however, Herrick asks that anyone wishing to attend contact the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce at 824-2282 by Monday, July 18, at 4 p.m. so proper seating can be arranged.

The Evans Notch Economic Project is a one-year locally controlled and developed project funded by a U.S. Forestry Service Rural Development Grant. The money was granted to the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce in July of 1993 and a project consultant was hired in August 1993. This presentation is the third in a series of four workshops to be held before the project is completed on July 30, 1994.

FROG JUMPING CONTEST

The 12th Annual Western Oxford County Frog Jumping Contest will take place on Mollykett Day, Saturday, July 16, at 2 p.m. across from the Common.

Children of all ages and frogs of all shapes and sizes are invited to enter. There is a small entry fee.
Cash prizes will be awarded for the frogs that jump the longest distance in three consecutive jumps. A prize is also given to the frog jumping the shortest distance.

The frog jumping contest has become an increasingly popular event, as evidenced by the registration of over 100 frogs last year.
Participants are asked to be kind to all frogs while they are in human care. To insure the frogs' safe return to a pond, there will be a collection bucket available at the race to put the frogs in.

PHILIP HENRY CHADBOURNE

Philip Henry Chadbourne, 93, died Friday morning, July 8, 1994, at his home on Broad Street, Bethel.

He was born on the family farm in East Waterford on May 29, 1901, the second of two sons who were the fourth generations to live there.

Mr. Chadbourne was the 10th generation that went directly back to the first sawmill in America, built in 1634 at the far height of tidewater above Portsmouth, N.H.

He walked to a one-room school until being sent to board at Hebron Academy, 20 miles away. During World War I, the family moved to Auburn where he graduated from Edward Little High School. He went on to Bates College from which he graduated in 1925, having majored in geology. He was on the outstanding debating teams of these schools and was a competitive distance runner. About the time of his graduation, he won the Colonial Cup, the individual snowshoe racing championship of North America.

After college, he started supervising logging operations and a portable sawmill for his father. He married Mary Mason Saunders in 1931 and settled in Auburn. In 1937, he set up a portable sawmill in Bethel, moving there in 1938.

Soon the portable mill was moved to a permanent foundation in the present location of P.H. Chadbourne & Co. in Bethel, a site chosen for its large open space, good air-drying conditions and the chance to build a railroad siding. A very fine planer was purchased in 1941 and became a central part in the reputation which Chadbourne white pine lumber was to gain over the next several decades.

During World War II, millions of board feet of white pine were shipped every year to aid the war effort, most of which was hand-packed into railroad boxcars. After the war a pent-up demand for housing kept the mills running long hours.

Starting in 1945, Mr. Chadbourne used graduate foresters to individually select trees for harvest or further growth, leading to a continual upgrading of the forty-thousand acres which the company gradually accumulated. Timber stand improvement work included the weeding of less valuable species and experiments in genetics and fertilization. Thousands of trees were pruned to grow clear timber.

About 1960, he employed a remote-controlled mechanical "tree monkey" to climb the tree and cut off high limbs. (The cumbersome device required two men to carry it from area to area, and was not replaced after it caught fire and burned.) By aggressive thinning every five to 10 years, the Chadbourne farms have not only been upgraded in quality, but have had an increased return on investment due to faster growth of the better-spaced trees.

Every year forestry students from various colleges and universities were brought long distances to see these forests held as ideal white pine management, by professors ranging from Dick Hale of the University of Maine to David Smith of Yale University.

Mr. Chadbourne's contributions to the forest industry were acknowledged in 1970, when he was presented the annual award of the Northeastern Loggers Association "for outstanding management of forestry industry lands for community betterment"; in 1975, when P.H. Chadbourne & Co. was chosen as the Outstanding Maine Tree Farmer; in 1984, when Maine's De-

NOTICE

Please take notice that P.H. Chadbourne & Co., P.O. Box 88, Route 26, Bethel, Maine, is filing for a Site Location of Development permit with the Maine Department of Environmental Protection pursuant to the provisions of Title 38, M.R.S.A. Sections 481 to 489 to expand an existing sawmill complex located on Route 26 in Bethel. P.H. Chadbourne & Co. intends to perform various site and building improvements, and add a planer mill and associated lumber storage facilities to its current operations. Also, P.H. Chadbourne & Co. is simultaneously filing for a permit with the Maine Department of Environmental Protection to make alterations under the Natural Resources Protection Act to construct a new Alder River crossing to provide safer and more efficient traffic flow around the same Route 26, Bethel site. The applications will be filed for public inspection at the Department's office in Portland and at the Bethel municipal offices on July 14, 1994. Written comments and/or a request for a public hearing from an interested person must be sent to the Department of Environmental Protection, 312 Canco Road, Portland, ME 04103, within fourteen (14) days of filing the application to receive consideration. A public hearing may or may not be held at the discretion of the Commissioner or the Board of Environmental Protection.

partment of Conservation presented its newly created Commissioner's Award "to P.H. Chadbourne & Co. in recognition of Outstanding Achievement in Forestry"; and in 1986, with the Natural Resources Council of Maine presenting its Maine Conservation Award to the company "for their outstanding work to protect Maine's environment."

Mr. Chadbourne was a president of the Northeastern Lumber Manufacturers Association as well as a president of the New England Lumbermen's Association.

He served his community in various capacities, including president of the Lions Club, a director of the Pine Tree Council of Boy Scouts, and as a trustee of Bridgton Academy.

Survivors include two daughters, Phyllis Heywood of LeRoy, N.Y., and Carolyn O'Brien of Bethel; three sons, Theodore S. of Saco, Robert P. of Bethel, and Thomas H. of Waterford; and 12 grandchildren. A son, William, died in 1940; and a grandson, Robert P. Chadbourne, Jr., died in 1984.

Funeral services were held Sunday, July 10, at the West Parish Congregational Church in Bethel. In lieu of flowers those who wish may make memorial contributions in his memory to the Project Learning Tree, P.O. Box 1024, Augusta, ME 04332-1024 or to the Building Fund, West Parish Congregational Church, Bethel, ME 04217.

PUBLIC HEARING

The Bethel Board of Appeals will hold a public hearing on Thursday, July 21, 1994 at 7:00 PM in the auditorium of Telstar High School. The hearing will address the decision made by the Bethel Planning Board to hold a public hearing based on a conditionally complete application submitted by the Bethel Station Project. The appeal was filed by Kathy M. Hooke on June 30, 1994. The Bethel Station application is on file at the town office and may be viewed by appointment.
